Your grade: 60%

Your latest: 60% • Your highest: 60% • To pass you need at least 70%. We keep your highest score.

Retry

You're viewing this assessment in its original language
You can switch back to view this content in your preferred translation if you'd prefer. You won't lose any progress if you change languages. Show Spanish version

1. Which one of the following is common to both machine learning and statistical inference? 0 / 1 point

- Using population data to make inferences about a null sample.
- Using sample data to infer qualities of the underlying population distribution.
- Using sample data to make inferences about a hypothesis.
- Using population data to model a null hypothesis.

Try again

Incorrect. Review the Estimation and Inference video.

2. Which one of the following describes an approach to customer churn prediction stated in terms of probability? 0 / 1 point

- Predicting a score for individuals that estimates the probability the customer will leave.
- Churn prediction is a data-generating process representing the actual joint distribution between our x and the y variable.
- Predicting a score for individuals that estimates the probability the customer will stay.
- Data related to churn may include the target variable for whether a certain customer has left.

Try again

Incorrect. Review the Estimation and Inference video.

3. What is customer lifetime value? 0 / 1 point

- The total purchases over the time which the person is a customer.
- The total churn generated by a customer over their lifetime